Trustees jack it up to 14.9%

Students say 6.9% is too low as they smoke lots of crack

BY RAZIT HIRE
DELUSIONAL FREAK

GW's Bored of Trustees grudgingly passed a 14.9 percent hike in tuition Friday after students protested Thursday that the proposed 6.9 percent was not enough.

The increase was confirmed in a conference call between the Board and GW President Slimfast NordiTrac Friday afternoon from NordiTrac's Rice Hall penthouse, recently completed with last year's 4.9 percent tuition increase.

The day before, students boycotted J Street, picketing outside the Martian Center with signs that read, "6.9 is too low!" and "Raise tuition, put us in debt!"

Administrators meant with the Student Elite Team the same afternoon to discuss the increase.

"I was disappointed with the way the meeting went," said GW Vice President for Student Emotional Support Services Robemblind Chernpak after the meeting. "We (the administration) kept saying we wanted to keep the increase as low as possible and the students kept saying they wanted it higher."

"We Give Our Members Free Stuff" Board Chair Rodent Dontteaseus said he was frustrated with the meeting.

"A seven percent increase is just too small," Dontteaseus said. "Students want to pay more; we all have large trust funds and secret bank accounts in Switzerland - why wouldn't we want to pay more?"

According to student leaders, it took almost seven hours to convince University officials to consider the 14.9 percent hike.

"We kept telling them 'Think of what we can do with the extra revenue,'" Überfraternity Council President Gimme Beerangirls said. "The University deserves as much of our money as it can get."

The team of students presented a proposed list of spending priorities to the administration, outlining suggested ways to spend the new income. GW officials say the list will be used as a starting point when the University develops its operating budget for the next academic year.

Codependence Magazine obtained the confidential document, apparently leaked by someone on the team who feels that tuition should not be increased.

Among the items listed in the document are the proposed purchase of Georgetown, Catholic,

The whole shoe-tree thing just got worse; Nike signs it for ads

BY DIM MENTALITY

HOPES BOTH SIDES KILL EACH OTHER OFF

The sordid tale revolving around a bunch of rotting sneakers in a dead tree that made every frat boy and I-am-woman-hear-me-roar whiner on this campus go ape-shit just got worse.

Nike Corpo., the athletic gear company that owns all of sports and the city of Chicago, has signed the tree to a lucrative five-year contract for product endorsements.

The tree will be featured in an advertising campaign with the slogan "Just Hang It," along with Allen Iverson, Richie Parker, Mike Tyson and the 39 computer freaks who croaked in San Diego. It will be part of a new, extensive, "I sure as hell am not a role model" campaign, directed by Charles Barkley.

Needless to say, the gals who didn't bond well with their fathers or something and now have to be recklessly independent are now infuriated out of their fucking minds.

"That's it, no more Ms. Nice Woman, I mean, W-O-M-Y-N, or W-O-M-B-I-N, or W-I-M- oh, who the fuck cares, just don't call me a man," said group leader Hotifshe Everloosedup, who, by the way, suspiciously resembles a man.

"Why don't you babes just cut the tree down?" challenged Beerguzzler Onprobation, head spokesman for Boys Associated Regionally in Frats, or B.A.R.F.

"Because we're all members of Students for Environmental Action, too," the chicks collectively whined. They then formed a protective ring around the tree and hugged it passionately. (Which, when you think about it, is probably the most passion these ugly muglies have gotten lately. I mean, come on.)

Onprobation defended the practice.

PB busts the move with Prez in Lincoln Bedroom

BY LEE RUBMEUPANDDOWN
ANDSERVEMEBERGERS
GODDESS OF BLACK

Controversy surrounding the litany of Clinton supporters who spent the night in the White House Lincoln Bedroom raged on campus today as the Program Bored confirmed several of their members were among the President's guests.

"It's all about motivating people," said PB Executive Chair Rodeo Sellinass. "When a member works hard, schedules a movie, comes up with a Spring Fling theme, I like to be ready with a little something to reward them."

Sellinass explained that through rigorous attempts to obtain corporate sponsors and with the help of graduate students' student fees, the group was able to raise $750,000 for the nights in the White House.

"All we needed was the cash to get our foot in the door," Sellinass said.

"Boy, were those White House towels fluffy, I could hardly get my suitcase closed," said former Parties Chair Smilin Toocheezi, who spent a night in the Lincoln bedroom after coordinating "Toga Tonite" in the Marvin Center.

"We've been able to purchase five nights in the Lincoln Bedroom already, imagine what we'll be able to do next year with our budget boost from the tuition increase," said an exuberant Sellinass.

"With the 38.5 percent tuition hike, we'll be rolling in cash, and if we ever fall short, Clinton gave us some fundraising tips," Sellinass added.

Previous membership rewards doled out by the PB included free massages, comedy club tickets and movie passes. Sellinass said the nights in the White House illustrate that the Program Board is "a student organization on the rise. We not only influence campus life, but peddle some national influence as well."

Though Sellinass defended the Lincoln Bedroom Merit Reward program, the group drew fire from several Studley Association senators who pledged to form a committee to investigate PB spending.

As long as an investigation is conducted "out of altruism" Sellinass said he "wouldn't mind."

(See WANT, p. 16)

I'm thinkin' 'bout TGWU, SE Asia, FoBo, SE Asia, etc.

So I was driving my jeep through the Philippine jungles the other day (oh yeah, did I mention I'm from Manila?) and I was thinking; why the hell is that "The" in TGWU? I mean, what's Stevie Joe Dictatorbergo's deal on that, anyway? Should we start calling him "The" El Presidente? I mean, really. My main purpose here is to get some shit started with The Man anyway, and he just gives me more and more fodder every day. It's almost become an obsession...

Besides, he won't play me in racquetball. Is El Presidente afraid of me or what? And if you said "The" El Presidente, you would be actually be saying "The" twice, based on the Spanish transliteration system, which I was exposed to after drinking Snake Urine Beer, otherwise known as "33" in thou PPhilippines.

But you know what really occupied my thoughts as I meandered through Vietnam on my crappy old bike, which I paid a whopping two schekels for? Geology. I mean, how useless can you get? I don't want to take any of these stupid science classes. I'd rather bitch about it once and then keep reminding you freaks about it in every single thing I write for these dictators at Codependence Magazine. I love my job, but I'm pretty pissed at a certain editor (we'll just call him "Keenie") who came over to my house, drank my beer and wouldn't help me move my shit!

Speaking of shit, I've got some thoughts on that, too, and I just know you want to read them. It's a really important issue for us world travelers. As for the rest of you people who are too poor and lame to travel any further than New Jersey - just stop reading, losers!

Anyway, yeah, where was I? Oh, yeah, we were discussing shit. Hmm, well, maybe my problem is just that I've drank too much weird crap. Snake piss, spit, wide-mouth cans of The Beast... mmm, The Beast. But anyway, I digress (and as a graduate student, I can say things like that). Like I was saying, shit happens, especially when you're in Southeast Asia (did I mention I was there?). I mean literal shit, you know. And all the Maalox or Imodium A-D in the world won't save you. Because this is such an appropriate subject for publication, LotBullShit just figured it'd be a public service to warn all of you. If only someone had warned me in Saigon. Did I mention I went to Saigon?

In fact, I fought in the Vietnam

War, which was actually only a conflict. OK, well maybe I didn't fight, but I would have - If I could have. But I really can't, because my pants would just fall down every time I tried to lift my M-16 assault rifle. Ever notice how that always happens right when you're trying to lift the damn thing.

That's why I like the PPhillippinneess better, cause there are no guns there, just lots of water.

Yet my erstwhile roommate still asks, "Have you ever been to the Philippines?" Well, not only have I been there on several occasions, which I may elaborate upon later, but all my geology classes also have allowed me to determine that Manila is the best place on earth to smoke cigars. And drink "33." And ride cheap motorcycles. And become an expert on all things FoBo.

Oh by the way, on an unrelated note, I just thought I'd tell you a little about my beard. I got one of them beards which I must keep a little different every day. Kind of like one day I'll have just heavy sideburns, the next a goatee, the next a full beard. But I've got some trouble with my connectors.

That's the part of the beard that connects the chin zone to the over-the-mouth zone. My connectors don't work too well, ever since I had them singed off by a blowtorch in a Manila bar.

Yeah, that's the 'Pines for you.

Lewis linked to DNC; JEC to 'fine his ass'

BY KINKY EROTICISM
HATCHET NIMFOMANIAC

Allegations surfaced late this week that Senile Association Presidential candidate Andrew "10 more points 'till I'm disqualified" Lewis has been linked to the Democratic National Committee fundraising scandal that has rocked the White House.

According to an unnamed source (whose name rhymes with Madam Niple), Lewis accepted more than $200,000 in donations and lots of free sex from DNC figure Juan Huang (pronounced "Won Wong").

In return for his donation, the source told Codependence Magazine that Lewis, an accounting major, fixed Huang's tax returns to hide another secret $500 million donation to the Cliton/Whore campaign.

Lewis, who actually looks like an accounting major, denied the allegations.

"Now, listen," he said, "this is just sensationalistic journalism. If you really want to see fraudulent finances, just look at that Gulpovar guy. His money has been through more cleaners than a cheap suit."

Also alleged was that Lewis spent a night in the Lincoln Bedroom for his campaign's $500,000 contribution to the Clinton/Bore campaign. Lewis, however, did not deny these charges.

"That bed is actually pretty comfortable," he said. "And those little mints they leave on your pillow are pretty far out, but they're nothing like the lingerie Hillary was wearing. Oops, I wasn't supposed to say that."

Asked about possible retribution for these allegations, Joint-smoking Elections Committee member Jiff "I'm so bitter it's pathetic" Carhole said the JEC will definitely fine Lewis' ass.

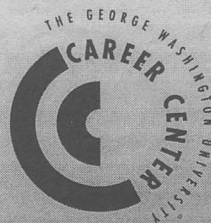

"This shmuck is such an easy target, numbnuts," Carhole said. "Who the hell does he have running that campaign of his - Jeff Butler?"

Lewis' campaign manager David Bleary, a graduate of the Walter Mondale School of Campaign Achievement, said he will immediately seek the resignation of someone.

"I don't give a fuck who it is," Bleary said. "I just want us to have something to talk about besides all these damn fines. Maybe like Bob Chernak or someone."

Lewis, who is teetering perilously on the edge of extinction because of his whopping number of election fines, said he will fight any suit by the "fucking fine-happy" JEC.

Lewis previously received 20 points for molesting Hatchet staff, 30 points for molesting SA staff, 20 points for bad karma, 10 points for obscene e-mail sent to anyone and everyone and 40 points for being associated with SA Puppet Master Scott "I will never leave GW! Never!" Mory.

Bitches

You know, it's just too bad that no decent self-respecting frat boy can express his chauvinist-pig sentiments on this campus anymore without all those WHYNE femiNazis butting in. With all that "shoe tree controversy" stuff getting in the way, what's a red-blooded resident of Animal House to do?

Since this estimable newspaper single-handedly started the whole controversy in the first place, we figured we had better come up with a solution to this problem. Our views on da Ebonics thang be waitin' their sweet time 'til next issue, bitch. It's time to show those commie broads in WHYNE who's really in charge on this campus.

So we have an idea. It's time to bring all those awful sexual encounters in frat houses out into the light. That's right; why have a one-night stand in some frat-boy bedroom when you can do the nasty right out in the open? What better place for random sex than right under the aforementioned shoe trees, right?

This plan has several advantages. Among the groups annoyed by this dramatic statement would be those damn femiNazis, the old hags of the Smoggy Bottom area and GeeDub's ever-present tree-huggers (right now, they're busy recycling, or hadn't you noticed the stellar environmental efforts going on on campus?).

It'd probably be best if the Stupid Association helped out with this initiative. Their effective advocacy would ensure that everyone gets involved. "Q-riffic" Gulpover, next year's SA glutton for punishment, has done so well with all his community work, so this project would be perfect.

So the next time you get beer goggles at a kegger, just step outside to consummate your passion. It's so convenient - when you're finished, just throw your shoes, underwear, used condoms etc., right up into the trees. Be careful, though. WHYNE members hide in the branches to listen for the moans of drunk, horny women and they've been known to fall to the sidewalk on occasion.

Hos

Indulge us for a moment. We'd just like to comment about the way over-rated chicks who are the worthless bunch that is the GW basketball team.

Even if we could get our foot in the door of Smithy Centre to watch a game - which we can't, of course, since it's always just bustin' at the seams when these gals hit the court; why, you'd almost think we needed a bigger gym! - why would we want to? Does TeeJay Abrahamovich think she's Allen Iverson or something? All she ever does is look for the monster jam. You know, there's just a shocking lack of team effort all around. No passing, no defense ... we could go on and on.

And then there's Head Honcho Jojo MacQueen, who we wish would just get a little teeny weeny bit pumped up once in a while. He just sits there like a lump! He never even takes off his jacket. And is it too much to ask to see him sweat a little bit? While we're on the subject, he could use a haircut, too.

The solution to all this mediocrity is obvious: we definitely need to abolish Title IX. What's all this "equality" shit anyway? Smithy Centre does not look like a kitchen. The GeeDub girlies ought to be playing barefoot, or maybe wearing Easy Spirits.

Well, anyway. We'd really rather talk about the one shining beacon of light in the middle of the darkness that is women's basketball. That's right: the refs. Gosh, they're so good, we ought to just thank Jesus and the A-12 for the luck that has been bestowed upon us. Not a single blown call all season! What're the odds on that?? These referees have all the precision of a U.N. task force, and they're much better-looking.

So you'd think those ingrate season-ticket holders would be more understanding. It's like, why do they have to be so rowdy? All those old fogies never sit down, so nobody behind them can see, and they're constantly yelling and waving those stupid yellow towels, too. Is it too much to ask that they follow the nice, quiet example of the Doggie Pound? Man, it's no wonder that conference dictator Lindy Bluto always wears that disgusting UMass red. Can you blame her?

PISSING AND MOANING

Scary blonde

Do you know what I do with every issue of this piece of shit newspaper? I burn it. That's right, burn it to a, like, crisp and stuff. And do you know why? Well, I'll tell you why. Until you come out with your special section commemorating the spectacular release of the GW CD, I am just not budging an inch. My paper will just keep going up in flames. So, like, there.

I mean, God, like, are you guys, like, blind or something? The CD release party was only, like, the biggest social event of the year. I mean, having free pizza was so, like, innovative and stuff. You might think the CD was just a shamelessly self-serving project, seeing as how Paddy Macmac and I had 10 lines of thank yous in the liner notes, but nowhere to be found were the names of the people in the actual bands. Well, whatever. I mean, if you don't already know who those hot babes in Spotnack Fly are, then, like, where have you been?

So this is my crusade. Until I see your newspaper devote itself to this oh-so-important issue, I won't give up. Don't even think about sitting in the front row at a basketball game, because I'll show up at halftime and weasel my way in front of you. Oh, and you know how you always say the SA doesn't do anything? Well, that is just, like, not true at all. Why, we have highly secretive cabinet meetings on a weekly basis!

-Crabby Spamturd

Blow shit up

I am very concerned that the government is just not doing enough to kick ass around the world. I mean, why on earth would we want "arms control," anyway?

It's bad enough that the Cold War is over. The Russkies can pose as happy capitalists all they like, but I know the truth. Those commie bastards are going to show their true colors any day now, and we have to be ready.

How to prepare? Well, I just think there needs to be a lot more nuclear buildup. I mean, really, guys. Why all this spending on social programs? We need warheads. We need missiles. I wanna kick some heinie, Independence Day-style!

I know you Marxist liberal bastards won't understand my subtle thought processes on this one, but just trust me. After all, even if we do blow the Russians out of orbit, we've still got Canada and Greece to deal with!

-D. Prince Of Wales

I'm a whiner

You know what happened to me the other day? I couldn't use my meal card! Waaah! And then this other time, I had to pay money to go to the GW Inaugural Ball! Waaah waaah! So I just knew I had to write in, because I know you all want to hear about my minute problems!

-Daring Notbright

Me too

I don't have any friends! No one talks to me when I randomly say hi to them in J Street! I can't find a boyfriend! When I went home for Christmas, I was sad! Everyone has random hookups but me! Not that I want one, because the GW brochure promised true love, and I believed every word! So I just knew I had to write in, because I really want to have my name in the paper! And it worked! Everyone knows me now! Even Recess made fun of me!

-Francie D.

Hypocrite

That cartoonist of yours, Rob I don't have a last name, should be shot. He is a pathetic, self-serving, insensitive bigot! His cartoon was soooooo meeeeeeeeeaaaaannnn! I mean, how could some white suburban kid really know Arabic? It's not like he'd have any friends who aren't rhythmless white boys like himself who could help him out.

But even though I don't actually speak Arabic or even recognize it, I have a Middle Eastern-sounding name and he doesn't. So I think I'm absolutely entitled to say how disgusted I am that he wrote fake Arabic in his miserable piece of trash cartoon. Even though it was real Arabic.

-Babble Safaria

Clueless

Um, I was just wondering if that cartoon, "GW Tragedies," was true. I mean, did Mike Jarvis and SJT really get caught at a crack party with the mayor? I know it's a cartoon, but, you know, if you read it in the paper, it has to be true.

-Some Random Lady

Tricky

I am so righteously indignant at your newspaper's muckraking! That Burger kid is a sensationalistic journalist, and nothing you write is true! Now please excuse me. I have to go violate some campaign rules and stack the Stupid Court with judges, so I can win and the PuppetMaster's dream can be complete.

-Handroo Shrewish

OMMMMMM...

Fourth-floor stooges are here for YOU. No, really, we are.

Lately, this newspaper has been giving the all-important Stooze Association a bad name. With all the scandals going around, people have been forgetting all the beneficial and necessary things we do every day.

So, I have written this editorial as SA Vice President for Having Known the President Before He Was Cool, informing the student body of all the things that the SA does.

First, it is very important to yell at the reporter covering the SA and make sure he writes stuff favorable to us. We know that nobody reads our shitty newsletter, so he is the person who has to tell the story about what goes on in our office. Tell him to take all the truth out, and make every story sound like the SA is great. E-mail him to death, call him and wake him up in the middle of the night, and bother him no matter where he is. Make his life absolutely miserable so that every time he sees an SA person he feels that uncontrollable urge to spit on them. This way, students will make sure to reelect us, even though we don't do anything for them.

Second, we make sure that no matter what we do, nobody offends the administration. Yes, we are the organization that is supposed to express student concerns to the people in Rice Hell, but we feel it is better to protest by not doing anything. That way, we know we're taking action but the administration never catches on. Clever, huh?

And, it is always important to find an issue that affects between one and five students and act like it is the most important thing in the world. Take student parking. Granted, most students don't bring cars to school since it is a metropolitan school and there are buses and trains, but there were several students who complained. So, we acted really strong and got things done. Oh, wait, we didn't get anything done. Bad example!

We also have important internal memos. These documents should express all the things we're really thinking about the issues, but they should be confidential. We don't want the entire student body knowing how we feel. We are supposed to be impartial about student affairs in their eyes. And whatever you do, don't leak the memos to the school newspaper.

One of the big things we did this year was trying to make sure that that Q guy was not elected president. I mean, he blows the whole Aryan race except for token minority members thing out of whack. He might put people who look different than us in the administration, and actually give them some authority. We did whatever we could, including talking to real students. That sure gave me heartburn!

For a good SA, frivolous lawsuits are essential. We have created our own court and have taken several cases to them. You see, when you choose who the judges are, it's easier to make them rule in your favor. Anyone who disagrees with us gets taken to court. This way, people think we have authority because we keep winning cases. Sometimes I amaze myself!

But the most important thing that we do is find somebody big to be in charge. And I don't mean that pretty-boy President of ours. Gosh, he's not in charge. I mean somebody who can have no official role but still run the show. I suggest a certain someone weighing more than 250 pounds who has been at the school since the Carter administration.

That is how our organization runs, and all the important things we do. How are we doing? Call (202) FUCK-YOU.

-Dick Clearly is Stooze Association Vice President for Having Known the President Before He Was Cool. He's also a ratty little weasel.

Clearly A. Dick

Da Prez, in his very own words: Students? I don't see any students

From what my lackeys tell me, this campus has been buzzing with angst over tuition or something like that. Students seem to be in quite an uproar over the simple fact that your Universidad de Jorge Washington necesita mucho mas dinero. (Why the Spanish? I'm practicing for my role in the Dottie B. Marvin Theatre revival of Evita.) And I've heard that some people are wondering where I, your president, am in all of this.

I'd be happy to tell you. The answer is, of course, absolutely nowhere. You whining undergraduates obviously have no understanding of the role of a university president. Well, let me educate you. My duties are as follows:

- 1) Sitting in Rice Cake Hall.
- 2) Doing lunch at the Eff Street Club.
- 3) Participating in seminars on the future of Israel.
- 4) Inviting President Clinton to Smythe Center.
- 5) Sitting in Rice Cake Hall.

That's more or less it. I also have to do a lot of schmoozing. I'm sorry the student body wasn't better informed about this, but my duties do not include the following:

- 1) Talking to students.
- 2) Listening to students.

3) Keeping tuition increases below double the rate of inflation.

4) Appearing at any GW event aside from graduation, the Bored of Trustys meeting and the Whirling Dervishes Live at Lisner.

5) Offering my views on financial aid, academics, dining and housing or other student issues.

I can, however, offer my views on film and society or GeeDub's impending takeover of the District. Perhaps these musings might be of interest to the readers of this fine newspaper, which I support unservedly and wholeheartedly (to Nickie Lorenzo's utter disgust)?

And yes, I do support this fine publication. Not only does it take me back to my fabulous years as a newspaper staffer in Colombia, but it also is a wonderful tool for the administration. Think about it; I give them a townhouse; they massage my ego. I give them nice new computers; they massage my ego. I give them cheap advertising; that's right, you know the drill by now. How did you think I get my ramblings published in this paper, anyway?

Really, though, I am concerned about students' needs. I'm more concerned about whether we should buy the State Department or the World Bank next, but that's not something you nice children need to know about.

But it would be really tiring to get out in the trenches every day, listening to the same tired stories. That's why I have my sidekick Booby Chehnack to do my dirty work. You may not understand this, but I have aspirations too. Why, all I ever really wanted to do was direct. Didn't you see that fabulous admissions video with the happy couple making out on the Quad? So I can't waste my time attending to the mundane needs of a few thousand malcontents. And why should I? I've worked too hard for this job to let a few students stand in my way.

-Stevie T. is Prez of Gee Dubbya Yew, proudly serving students with a second-tier education and luxurious dorms since 1821 B.C. He's also supposedly a professor of something, but have you ever had a class taught by him?

D.C.'s plot revealed: students to die really, really, really painfully

Dear Friends at GW,

As I sit in my decrepit office in the District building and write this letter to you, I am distressed by the misconstrued image I have on your campus. I am writing to you to correct this image and hopefully restore a mutually beneficial dialogue.

There seems to be this idea out there that I hate students. That is simply not true. In fact, I despise them. There is a fine line of difference between hating and despising any one class of people.

So, I write to you today to inform you of my intentions as to your vermin-like civilization of beer-guzzling, taking-up-my-parking space, having-sex-on-our-lawns and stealing-our-mail rodents you call students.

My plan, which I have already ramrodded through the City Council as unchangeable emergency legislation that is virtually veto-proof, calls for the gradual but timely extinction of all student lifeforms in Ward 2. Let me explain.

You see, you're worthless. I don't like you now and I never have. You don't vote here, and anyone who knows me knows I only like you if I can get you to vote for me. You don't pay any taxes. You don't clean up after yourselves and you pay the salary of that idiot president of yours who's always on my ass about something or other. So I have been left with no other choice but to simply get rid of you.

And it will definitely help me get the votes of all those cranky old bags when I run for mayor next year. So, here goes:

1. All students with last names A-M should proceed to the Quad at noon sharp today for execution. Form an orderly line starting on H Street, and I don't want to hear a peep out of any of you. You students have been known to whine about anything and everything, but that's all over now.

2. All students with last names N-Z are the ones I'm really going to have fun with. The females will be used as my personal sex slaves so I can populate the earth with ego-centric power-hungry psychos like myself.

3. You men will be forced to be life-long D.C. bureaucrats somewhere in the District building. While you won't be required to actually do anything (like any other job in the District), your job will have absolutely no job satisfaction, no benefits, no security, no toilet paper and no guarantee that you will make it out of the building alive.

4. Anyone who fails to show up at the Quad at noon will be the victim of my untamed anger and rage. In fact, I've gone so far as to get Ms. Dotty Militant and Ms. Scary

Tyler to be part of my plan. If you don't show up at noon, you'll be condemned to spend the rest of your life living with one of these two fine women. Now, if that's not punishment enough, I don't know what is.

I hope this letter clears up any misunderstanding that may have been circulating around Leaky Bottom about my true intentions in this, our fair District of Confusion.

The truth is I can't stand any of you. The parking thing was just the beginning. That was the nice side of me, but no more Mr. Nice Guy. It's time for me to get medieval on your heinys. So stop your bitching and complaining and whining and if you don't like it, go back to Cherry Hill where you all came from.

Thanks for this opportunity for such a constructive dialogue. It's been my pleasure, but not as much as tomorrow on the Quad. Oh, and don't be late. I'm very big on promptness.

Codependance Magazine, 2140 G St. N.W. (in case the person who childishly egged us last year forgot the address) Washington, D.C. 20052 (via Internet, when we feel like checking the e-mail), is published by the Liberal Elite Media Cartel, an independent (yeah, whatever), non-profit corporation kissing the administration's butt for quite a while now. How the hell did you think we got the townhouse? The Board of Dictators of the Cartel has sole Authority for the content of this publication, so they're gonna get medieval on your ass. All inquiries, comments and complaints will be noted and duly disregarded, but if you insist, your pointless bitching should be directed to the dictators at the addresses above. Opinions expressed in signed columns are those of the authors, except when the inept editors completely butcher them. House editorials represent a whole lotta nothing, so don't bother to read them - no one does. For information on advertising rates, call Todd, but don't expect him to be here. Deadlines for submitting letters to the editor and opinion columns are whenever we feel like accepting them. If you work for the Program Board, that'd be never. They must include the author's name, student number and lots of worthless pontificating about completely irrelevant crap to be eligible for publication. We do not guarantee publication of any letters under any circumstances, asshole, so don't hold your breath waiting for your crappy article to end up in the paper. We reserve the right to turn off our computer's spell checker and edit all submissions to make sure they're as unreadable as possible. For more information on submitting letters or signed columns, call David Eldred over at the SA. He knows everything; just ask the CityPaper. SA fights administration; no one gives a shit

Senate doesn't do a damn thing so it's business as usual

BY MUST BURNTHAM
SENSATIONALISTIC JOURNALIST

In the most shocking decision that no one cared about since George Bush jumped out of an airplane, the Student Condemnation Senate declared war on the University administration, citing no reason whatsoever.

According to a press release written by SA Vice President for Factual Mistakes David El loco, "War. Now. Good. Heil McKenna."

He also said the SA will pay taxes on all materials used in the war.

In a heart-warming speech which brought many Senators to tears, SS EVP Diet Guru said, "We are! G-W!"

The war will consist of yelling really loudly in front of Rice Hall. "They hate it when we do that,"

Senator-elect Patrick "The future of the machine" Myanus said. Myanus is also expected to coordinate the war with his campaign for SA President in 1998.

The war will also consist of refusing to buy blue pens from the University bookstore.

Most Senators agreed with the war, but some feel it is a waste of time. Sen. Hal Kanefsky (Geshundeit!) was awakened during the meeting to voice his opinion. "Everyone knows I haven't done anything all year, why do you expect me to start now?" the Academic Affairs Committee chair said.

Senator Adam Simple announced that he will hold an Issue Extension Night on the fighting, and bellowed in his Boston twang, "Ask not what your SA can do for you, ask what you can do for your SA."

Reaction to the meeting from the administration was swift. Vice President for Student Athletic Support Services Robert Kissass said, "There are students? Trachtenberg once mentioned there being kids at this place, but I've never paid much attention to them."

The interview ended early so that Kissass could see the GW men's basketball team lose to American.

In other SA boredom, Senator Make Everyone Crazy e-mailed the entire student body, announcing the formation of a committee to investigate the Program Board's use of funds to buy the Hippo. The Senate Un-Adolescent Activaties Committee will be braced by J.P. Beenfloored.

"I don't support the committee, but I don't not support the committee," Beenfloored said. He also admitted enjoying being approached by Crazy for the position.

The group is expected to make a recommendation, but nobody is saying about what. Due to their lack of authority, the anticipation for their recommendation is overwhelming.

"Scott Mory has told me I think it's a great idea," SS President Damian "D" McCarthy said of the committee. "I have also been told that I am the President. Shhh, don't tell anyone."

He then was pulled by a long string and left the room.

PB Chair Rodin Myass said of the investigation, "We follow every rule. Granted, we make the rules as we go along, but we make sure we follow them."

He continued, "God, it's not like I spend all my time writing letters to the National Review."

In order to save money, the SS, according to a memo leaked to the Codependence Magazine, will cut every program that even marginally benefits the student body.

"I think it's a great idea," David Clearhead said. "But, if I find out who leaked the memo, I'll kill them."

ANC hags bitch and moan again. Big deal.

BY FLAIR BUGGIN'-OUT
HATCHET WASTE-OLD

The Authoritarian Nazi Commission of Ward 2 had its weekly meeting last night. All 600,000 D.C. residents were invited to attend except for DaHoTey Killer and MeA Crier.

Don "I Defend GW Because I Secretly Want A Rim Job From SJT" Tobibi said, "Those two crotchety old fuckbags weren't invited because at the last meeting they forgot to wear their Depends and it was a real mess!"

Sarah "I'm A Real" Goodfuck, who attempted a coup on Killer last year, said, "I wish those two old dykes would just die already."

Q-ragious Hairybyfar, the GeeDubie Stupid Ass-ociation president, did not share these same sentiments. "We need to get along with these crazy, old fucks. That way they'll trust us and when they least expect it, we'll take over the entire Leaky Bottom neighborhood! Ha Ha Ha!"

Both Killer and Crier claim they were purposely not invited to the meeting. "It's a conspiracy to keep us from voting. How am I supposed to know about the meeting just from getting phone calls, reading fliers and from the simple fact that they are held the same time every week? If they really wanted me to know about the meeting, they would have hired Bea Arthur to deliver a naked singing telegram to me - then I would have definitely known about it."

Crier, however, wasn't as upset as Killer, her scissor-sister. "I figured it would just give me more time to pursue my other interests. For example, my favorite thing is to yell at unsuspecting, innocent college kids. Just last Halloween I told three kids in a house on my block that their decorations were trashy. I wonder why the fake cobwebs are still up five months later. Weren't they scared of me?"

"The only thing we were scared of is that her adult diapers were going to leak on our front yard," said one of the unnamed students, who requested that her real name, Claire Donovan Duggan, not be used. "We threatened to tie her up and make her watch the Real World 5 and Real Sex XVIII while doing bong hits but she just ran down the street screaming something about elders and respect, or something like that. I guess I don't really remember, I was drunk."

Sarah MadFuck and Bernard BrownNoser have scheduled the next meeting for Tuesday, April 1. In honor of April Fool's Day, the two have set-up a public stoning for Killer and Crier. Madfuck said, however, that no rocks will be used, only bricks and dart boards will be acceptable to "knock the lights outta those two bitches!"

Hospital finds final solution for ANC hags

'Women's Studies' added to MVC curriculum

BY JERRY SHAIR
MEGALOMANIAC

A group of investors including Dr. Jacque Gevorkian purchased the GW Hospital this week, pledging to cut costs by refusing to treat any patients over the age of 28.

The new policy, expected to save more than $17 a year, is likely to result in a significant number of new deaths. Gevorkian said he will bring to the hospital his world-renowned treatment style, which includes cyanide IVs, poisoned Tylenol tablets and dirty needles.

The acquisition of the famous doctor, who will also serve as Vice President for Medical Affairs and Mortality Studies, should substantially boost the image of the school's medical center. The former vice president, Aloun Goldenwine, was finally dismissed after refusing to divulge that the hospital lost $2 billion last year.

Gevorkian said his methods also will help the Cloudy Ass community at large. "The more successful we are, the less old people will survive," he said.

In a sudden contrast to his previous policy, however, Gevorkian said he will now begin his "special" treatment on people other than the terminally ill.

"Everyone deserves equal treatment," he said. "There is absolutely no reason to limit our efforts to those already dying."

The Advisory Nayborehood Commission met immediately to formulate its response to the sale. However, only Dotty Maulem showed up at the meeting, and proceeded to argue with herself for 20 minutes before storming out of the chamber.

Gevorkian said he eagerly anticipated her appointment at the hospital next week to have a forehead goiter removed. "Of course we'll take off the goiter, but once we get them under the knife, we really have no choice but to probe for muscle tone and skeletal gerth."

He added that there was a good chance she would not be able to attend the next meeting...

The sale of the hospital is the second major transaction in as many weeks for the University. Last week, GW converted Mt. Vernon College into a brothel.

New chairman of the MVC Board of Trustees Woolie Boars said that after extensive discussions, the all-male Board could think of nothing better to do with the school's all-female population.

"Though its buildings are falling apart, there is still more than enough space to fulfill our goals," Boars said. The chairman, who also will act as the top pimp-daddy, said that instead of a University Club, as GW has, there will be a "Gentleman's Club" on the third floor of the student center.

Across the hall will be a slightly modified version of GW's "ballroom." Boars had no comment.

MVC student "body" president Ginger Sweetmomma promised top-notch services. "I know we'll make this arrangement work," she said.

Both sides agreed that everyone will start playing "in the school's fields" immediately.

Tickle-Me-Q dolls disappear from stores

Holiday shoppers found themselves fighting to the death in a last-ditch attempt to find one of the few remaining "Tickle-Me-Q" dolls in stores all across the country this past weekend.

The doll, which will dance on command and yells out various words starting with the letter "Q," has been swept off store shelves in a selling spree unseen since Cabbage Patch Kids.

The fur-covered doll sells for a reasonable $29.95 but shoppers have turned up empty-handed in search of the doll.

"We need to come together, to become one campus, ha, ha, ha, ha, ha," the doll giggles when his tummy is pushed.

"These dolls are pretty damn cool," the Tickle-Me-Q doll's promoter, Rusty Bathroom Stall, said. "They really could bring this community together. Maybe there's one lost somewhere in my hair."

BURNING BRIDGES

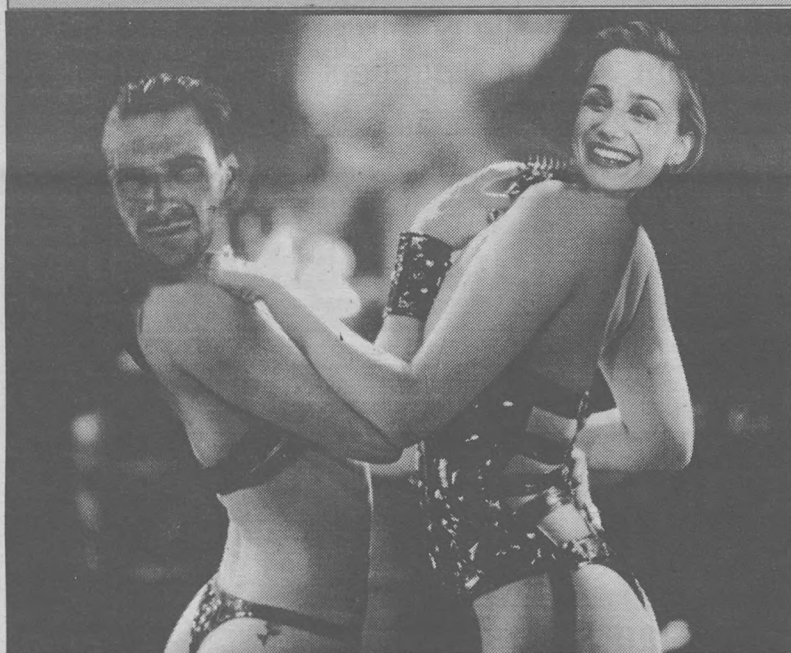

The new GW 8-track, the least anticipated thing to come out of Leaky Bottom since Dinka Dare, will have its coming out party this Thursday to a lifeless gathering of four at J Street.

The 8-track, entitled Up Yours, Denzel Washington, is a shameless résumé booster for Stooges Association members and the scant bit of talent GW has to offer in music, comedy and interpretive dance.

Those appearing on the 8-track are the a capella singers GW Troubleshooters, student band Spuds Can't Fly, improv group GW Study Break, disgraced Grammy winners Milli Vanilli and some random man who walked into the auditions wearing a spangled G-string and a fake mustache to perform a ballet routine to ABBA's "Dancing Queen." His shufflings are plainly heard in the background to the song.

All five acts who auditioned for a chance to appear were selected, with the exception of GW President-for-Life Stephano J. Trachtenperón, who wanted to sing "Don't Cry For Me Foggy Bottom." He was rejected

Breaking shit a great way to relieve stress

BY BONNIE AND CLYDE
RECENTLY PAROLED

It's midterm time and you're stressed. You want to scream, throw your books, go medieval. But your roommates are shushing you and your RA's talking fines for violation of quiet hours.

In past issues of the TWeekend, we have advocated safe, clean, fun means of students entertaining themselves and relieving stress. We have encouraged baking apples and watching cheap rip-offs of The Parent Trap starring Mary Kate and Ashley Olsen. We have tried to maintain order.

But you know what? Fuck 'em. You're paying $100,000 to go to this university, so you might as well get your money's worth. Take a look around you — the desks, the blue clocks, the mulch. Who do you think paid for that shit? You! You own it! So why not vandalize it this weekend? Here are a few suggestions, but we're sure you and your hoodlum friends can come up with better ones.

TP-ing the Quad

TP-ing is a lost art form, indeed. The GW campus is a prime spot to engage in this act of vandalism — the trees, the clocks, the statue of George are all really asking for it, don't ya think?

The first thing to take care of is procuring the proper type of toilet paper to do the job. Cheap, Safeway MacArthur Park is melting/In the dark/On the street/Green icing/Flowing down.

Then you have to practice and perfect your toss so you can get the maximum flight for each roll of TP. We would suggest throwing the roll across your dorm room or at one of your friends pretending to be the George statue. It takes delicate touch to get the white tissue to fly without ripping.

When you have made all the necessary preparations, and are suitably dressed in dark clothing, head out after 2 a.m. to avoid UPD and have fun!

Stealing study lounge furniture

The furniture found in the study lounges is perhaps the nicest stuff the University purchased. Those posh couches and teak tables are straight out of the Ethan Allen catalogue. They belong in your possession.

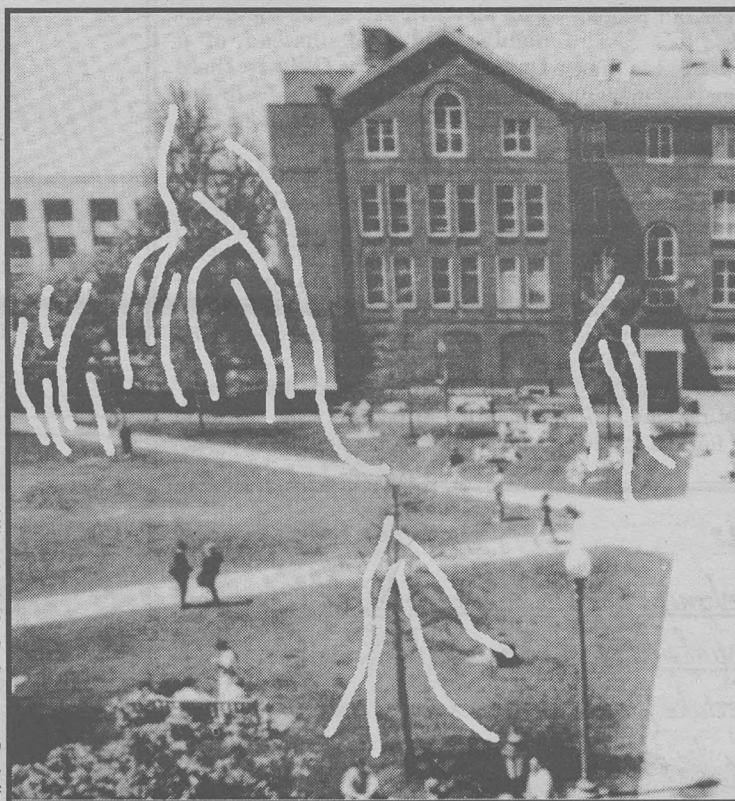

You might ask, "And where in the hell am I supposed to put the study lounge furniture after I remove it from the study lounge? It certainly won't fit in the shoebox-size room the University issued me, along with three other roommates from New Jersey?"

The answer of course is that the furniture should be used for entertaining and leisure activities. Park it in front of your residence hall and harass passers-by. Or haul it to the Quad so you have somewhere to sit and mix your martinis the next time the University shows Twister and everyone spontaneously breaks into the Macarena or Mike Walker shows up with his band to play "Louie, Louie."

The key to the thievery is being covert. If you live in Thurston, it may mean appointing a look-out man for your operation to serve as a diversion for the security cameras in case the guard at the front desk looks up from his Twinkie to actually witness you removing the furniture. We suggest stripping naked and streaking.

Defacing the Hippo

If anything on this campus is just begging to be vandalized, it's that damn forsaken hippo. That rusted water horse represents everything that is wrong with the way GW wastes our tuition dollars. It is your right and responsibility to destroy it!

Our suggestions? Vomit is always attractive, especially after a night of chili and intense drinking. Aim either for the hippo's gaping mouth or his shiny ass.

Smearing different types of condiments or food stuffs on the hippo is also a good option. Mayonnaise, Velveeta cheese squirt and mashed-up blueberries would even give the hippo a GW school spirit-type look. If you don't want to waste money on extravagant groceries for the sake of vandalism, then a good ol' blowtorch can do a hell of a lot of damage, as well.

One word of caution: be quick and efficient in the still of the night. Those cops on tricycles can sneak up on you before you know it.

Food fights at J Street

If you've ever tasted the slop they serve up at the Smash and Grab in One Way Street, you know the only place it is worthy of going is straight to floor. So spare your stomach and send your dinner flying.

Some foods make better projectiles than others. We recommend day-old bagels (you know, all the bagels they serve, except for the ones that are two days old), cheese sticks, the chicken Caesar salad and various burrito ingredients, but not the actual tortilla. It's not aerodynamic enough for food fight purposes.

Some targets are better than others, too. We recommend you take aim at the condiment stations, the long tables of sorority girls wearing sweatpants, various University administrators unfortunate enough to be wandering by and Jonathan Pompous, vice-chair of the Marvyn Centre Governing Bored.

If you are careless enough to be caught, blame your act of vandalism on temporary insanity caused by preservatives in the food. Fire away!

WEEKEND

Bar: Schmodd's.
 Where: Just follow the smell of hair gel and bad cologne.
 Crowd: Cracker Bitch heaven.
 Getting In: A good place to go after The Crow Bar takes your ID away.
 Prices: Cover is only eight bucks! What a bargain!
 Food: Is found all over the toilets.
 Dancing: Drunk white people with no rhythm. Oh Yeah!
 Pick-ups: "You like Ace of Base?!? Me, too!!"
 Pluses: There's always the possibility that you'll be able to take advantage of some wasted J.A.P. before you even leave at the end of the night. Also, open-air vomiting is tolerated and expected.
 Minuses: The bouncers get sorta pissed when you try to have sex in the bar booths.

With that slut the Bar Belle now in detox, it's time for me, the Dumb Bell, to take over. The Dumb Bell's first assignment was to go and take a look at Schmodd's.

Ah, Schmodd's, how the Dumb Bell loves you so. The Dumb Bell remembers the first time he went there, when he was pledging his fraternity. It was Hell Week, so they made him drink a lot. The Dumb Bell must have had, like, 20 beers and 10 shots of tequila, and he was the mack! The Dumb Bell was about to get it on with this slut, but then he puked on himself and her. Then he hit his head on the corner of the bar. It was the funnest ambulance ride the Dumb Bell ever had.

And then there was the time that the Dumb Bell and his fraternity brothers got in a fight with these other guys. We really kicked some ass. The slut that the Dumb Bell was hooking up with said that the blood on his shirt looked really sexy. The Dumb Bell got some lovin' that night, let me tell you!

Let the Dumb Bell also tell you about the sluts who go to Schmodd's. Boy are they sluts. He bets those sluts would screw anyone who walked through the door. But that's why Schmodd's is so much fun. It's all about the sluts. "Two tits, a hole and a heartbeat," that's the Dumb Bell's motto.

Oh yeah, Schmodd's has this really good microbrew there. It's called "Busch." The Dumb Bell's friend thinks it's from Canada, but he's wrong. It's from Germany. The Dumb Bell should know because his Dad let him have a sip of his beer, once.

So Schmodd's can be summed up in three words: sluts, fights, puke. And the Dumb Bell asks you: Does it get better than that? He doesn't think so, especially the sluts. Boy, are they sluts.

Director uses slut to improve desert dud popular songs from 1987, including Tone Lōc's "Funky Cold Medina" and Paula Abdul's "Coldhearted Snake."

In addition, May has added 45 minutes worth of footage from another epic set in the desert, The English Patient, as well as a few lesbian sex scenes from Showgirls to make the film a bit more respectable.

"The English Patient was so well-received by the critics last year – you know with all those Golden Chobes and shit – that I thought I could steal a few scenes to put in my movie and people wouldn't really notice too much, 'cause they're both set in deserts," May tried to explain during her liposuction surgery here in Washington last week.

But is it worth going to the movie theater to see a film you have on video and have ignored dozens of times in the past?

A resounding yes. Yes? Yes!

The extra scenes, which expand the movie to a spellbinding three hours and 20 minutes, bring new depth and emotion to Ishtar. Ralph Fiennes and Juliette Binoche interact marvelously with original cast members Dustin Hoffman and Warren Beatty, as well as with Elizabeth Berkley, who played Jessie Spano on "Saved by the Bell" but is best known as the whore from Showgirls.

May has also digitally created 100 more camels and a Jabba the Hut for one scene in Ishtar, in which a sexually-ambiguous Jabba hilariously tries to put the moves on Hoffman. May has also digitally added the other cast members from "Saved by the Bell," including Mario "Slaty" Lopez and Mark-Pauly Gooosselaaaar ("Mother, May I Sleep with Danger?"), to interact with the befuddled Berkley. She looks a little perplexed as to how she ended up in the desert, and keeps asking where the Cheetah is.

Although the new scenes add drama and reality to Ishtar, the film still isn't that funny. May added some digitally-enhanced jokes to the script, but they sound really flat coming from Fiennes' accent-laden tongue.

The new footage, editing and sound adds an estimated $85 million to Ishtar's already expensive price-tag (the film cost $205 million to make the first time). Global receipts from the re-released classic have just topped $85, so it may be some time before this remake grosses as much as The Goonies: Special Edition did two years ago. Ishtar opens in brothels this millenium.

Old hag kills pretentious teens in bloody Squeal

BY LUSTIN' SPERGEMAN
 WEEK ME, WRITER

Cliff Claven's new movie, Holler! (Polywog/Trash Line/MirroredMax Productions), is really good, but scary, too.

The star of Yell is a really old woman named Dorothy Miller ("The Golden Girls," Stay Away From Me, Scary Old Bitch: The Tennessee Retirement Home Sex Slave Story). She starts hanging out with a bunch of pretty, whiny, lily-white kids at Bayside High School, but then some of the kids start dying and no one knows who the killer is.

 Rating:

One girl, played by Niévée (pronounced Free-dah) Campbell ("Depressing, Dysfunctional Party of 6.5"), becomes the target of the killer, who runs around scaring people with a knife and a mask on his face to protect his identity so no one will know who the killer is.

Then there is also this TV reporter, played by Cortnee Cocks ("Enemies"), who tries to find out who the killer is, too. Except she isn't too good at her job and she ends up having sex in the bushes with Patricia Arquette's brother (Ishtar).

Finally at the end of Shriek, all the kids and that old woman Miller are all hanging out at this party – drinking, playing loud music in the streets and having sex on mail – when the killer ("Alice") shows up again, but no one knows who it is.

In one of the film's most poignant moments, Miller and Campbell are having sex in the upstairs bedroom when the killer comes in and starts hacking away at Né'evie's body until the whole bed is sopping in blood.

The kids all trap the killer in the kitchen, and they find out who it is – that ancient woman Dorthea "W" Miller. But there were really two killers and that's when Dru Baltimore (Mad, Mad Love) comes back to life and starts stabbing people with pinking shears. One of the people who died, Skeet Shooter Ulcer (Mad, Mad Love 2), was really convincing.

Overall, this film was scary.

"The culture clash is extremely fun and interesting to watch and interesting," said Nérvéux Campbell from the set of her next film, Screech.

The actors did a really good job at playing characters. For one minute, I thought I was really gonna get killed! The energy and ambition of the actors just leapt off the screen – literally. I had to push Naïve off of me once. How! closes in cemeteries and libraries this October.

Mediocrity rules on crappy 8-track for reasons of plain bad taste.

SA members say they encourage students to purchase the $2 8-track, because it will not be available in stores. "Plus, you won't be able to hear it over the radio since the only station that will play it is WRGW," Abitude Sangfroid, SA veep of student lethargy, said.

Kuyomars "Q" Golparvar, SA veep for sucking up to the old bags of Foggy Bottom so Trachtenperón can expand his empire and whose name is funny as it is, said he can't wait for the listening party. "There's nothing I love more than a rockin' jam. Except maybe saying Soraya Tabibi's name backwards," he said. He said he is planning to wear a dress designed by Versace and his diamonds will come from Tiffany's.

"We are looking forward to the release, but the end of the project means we in the SA will have to find some other way to occupy our time. Maybe we'll look into being an advocate for student rights, but probably instead we'll remodel the office," Sangfroid said.

All proceeds from the sale of the 8-track will go towards SA chief bureaucrat "Dreamy" Damian's Hair Club For Men membership.

From now on, Codependence Magazine won't tolerate cheapskates in the GW Community.

Yeah, right. What a protest.

Lech Walesa never saw solidarity like this. No diggity.

BY MARGE L. SIMPSON
YOU KNOW, MAGGIE'S MOM

The only way GW's apathetic students can have a protest is to hold it in J Street during lunch hours to make it appear that students care, GW administrators agreed after the student sit-in March 27.

"So what - I have to register as a D.C. citizen and forfeit my state voting rights to park in D.C.," junior Apa Thee said.

"So what - I have to pay $300 more in rent for my tiny apartment in Fuggly Bottom because I had to kick out my three housemates," Thee added. "The city wants to regulate the number of unrelated residents per house and I wasn't about to marry my girlfriend just so she can live with me; I'm sorry but she had to go, she didn't do my laundry for me anyway."

The Smart Alecks organized a protest during lunch hours because "We were afraid that they would not show otherwise," SA President Diamond N. Henna said. "The scene in Freedom Plaza brings back painful memories and I'll be replaced next year by a person who dances very well before I let that happen again."

"I don't care. I'm just here to get an education," Pursue Sensible Underdogs member Dinka Yaray said. "This is only four years of residency outside of my home state."

Administrators said they could get away with raising tuition and food prices because "hey, I saw students rub that Hippo's nose," President Strep Throat said. "They believe I know what's best for them."

Vice President of Small As a Sip of Soda Bourbon Chicken added, "Money Earning Mount Vernon College was a great investment just look at the name, who hasn't heard of Mount Vernon?"

D.C. officials said they could limit how many unrelated people can live in a home and require registering as a D.C. resident to park cars in D.C. because the students are turning historic Foggy Bottom into a "Budweiser guzzling, marijuana stealing, cheap brothel of a town. Annoying Nag of a Corpse member No Diggity Miller said.

However, one official did not have much to say. Instead, he was concerned with his constituency.

"I like students, they really help clean up Foggy Bottom," City Councilman of Section 8 housing Crack Heavens said. "But I have children and a bachelor's degree and I need this job. I need to mean to these students ... they're only here for four years. After they get their bachelor's and have children I'm sure they'll forget me. anti-student legislation that will help me get reelected."

D.C. mayor Marry Barry was unavailable for comment due to retreat on Shelter Denile Island.

D.C. delegate Buildnomon Homes Norton said she cannot comment on anti-student legislation because the National Women's Issues Now had her preoccupied with scream detectors (use during loud parties in room with magic locks) and alcohol searches of fraternity houses on campus.

Students demonstrate that they're a bunch of rich snobs, demanding that tuition be raised at least 40 percent.

IM editor takes top prize at spelling bee

Provenzo still can't spell 'T-berg'

BY TRIBECCA NEILSON
TV RATINGS GUIDE

Incompetence Magazine editor in chief Nikolass Provinsoe one the first annual GW spelling bee Friday. Prevnzoe won the double-elimination contest when he correctly spelled "hippopotamus," after misspelling "Trachtenberg" in the first round.

"I'm a fanatic about spelling; come to think of it, I'm a fanatic about a lot of things," Proletariat said after Friday's event. "I've been practicing the words every nite for weeks."

Proletariat said he was embarrassed about misspelling the name of the University's president.

"I've never done anything like that before, certainly not in a story. Headlines, maybe, but never a story," he said.

Probono, who has been credited with the development of the world's first computer spelling check program, was presented a plack and a shirt proclaiming him "The Voice of Correct Spelling at The Gorge Washington University."

Proaynrande beat out a GW English 10 professor, a Womyn's Issues Now member and a D.C. public school kindergardener for the title of "GW's Best Speler."

During the contest, contestant and WIN member Iprefer Nikestreeboks was escorted from the room after she went into hysterics when she was referred to as president of the women's organisation.

"We are a nonhierarchial organization!!" she screamed. Nikestreeboks had already misspelled "penis" in the first round of the contest.

The D.C. kindergardener, Joe Doe, was favored to win the spelling bee, but came in second to Proauthority. Doe lost after adding an extra "I" to "apocryphal."

"I'm as happy as a little school-girl," Pronazio, a 38-year-old junior said. "I'm going to go home and prove to my wife that I is a real man, just like that Tim Allen guy on TV, but with more tattoos."

Get more than a ride with UPD's new escorts

BY HUGE HEFFER
DEPENDENCE MAGAZINE PLAYBOY

Upydopydo Police Director Dalorys Staffwriter said yesterday the UPD-sponsored escort vans will expand their services to include actual escorts available to students at a minimal price.

"We always try to satisfy our students, and this is just one more way," Staffwriter said. "The revenue generated from this will be used to buy more donuts, state-of-the-art deep fat fryers and hire real police officers."

Staffwriter said each night will feature a different form of adult escort. Monday will feature the men and sneakers of Delta Tau Delta and Tuesday will feature the women (we think they're women) of Himmmin's Issues Now.

The Stupid Association has volunteered to staff the escort van on Wednesday night with Damian GAPboy" McKenna and Lady Di

"Give me some lovin' " Gayucksai serving as your personal campus tourguides.

"We always said we wanted to bring the SA to students," Gayucksai said, "and now we can really deliver. Just don't bring your tape recorder."

Thursday and Friday nights will be "leather nights" with GW Bigguy Stephie Joel and Littleguy Bobbie C. spinning the hits in 100 percent cowhide.

"I love to get to know my students," Bobbie C. said, "in the most intimate of ways. We'll drive up to my house and me and Linda will get everyone wicked stupid."

The Pogrom Bored will provide escorts and free massages on Saturday nights to members of the PB 'n J and on Sundays the lovely calendar girls of Shit Street will offer more than just a free ride.

"Just wait until you see what I can do with guacamole," a Shit Street employee known only as "Lolita" said.

Students boycott J Street for higher hike

American, UDC and the School Without Toilets, a move students and administrators agree is the first step in GW's eventual takeover of the city.

"I'm so glad the Student Blundership Team convinced the University to make tuition higher," sophomore basketweaving major Ima Weirido said. "I was beginning to worry that GW thought we couldn't afford a tuition increase. Thirty thousand dollars is pocket change. I want to be in debt for the rest of my life."

NordiTrac said he hopes to make up for this year's "atrocious increase" by decreasing tuition during the next five years.

"There's no reason students should pay that much for a GW education," he said. "It's just not worth the money anymore. We're hoping to eventually pay for our students' graduate educations, since you can't get a job without a graduate degree."

He said the Board of Trustees was "very upset" about the increase. Three members resigned in protest after Friday's meeting. They were replaced with a race of super-smart donkeys.

Ruskies serve up the grub

GW's three comrades to compete with Lindy's Bong

BY OBI-BEN OSGUENEDY
CODEPENDENCE MAGAZINE WESTCHESTER
BUREAU CHIEF

Hungry GW students will soon have a new option when they're not in the mood for a ratburger at J Street or a half-hour line at Au Butt Pain. They just better not expect great food.

"The Belo" is a new eatery opening in 2000 Pennitentiary that will feature the cuisine of Belarus. The proprietors, GW basketball players Alexander Goul, Yegor Messcheviakov and Andrei Krivohshit, said they were three bored fellows looking for a new endeavor.

The players said they had a couple reasons for their business venture. One, there is a decided lack of Belorussian restaurants in the area, or the world for that matter. Two, they had a whole lot of free time this March to set up the restaurant.

The free time was a perk of the Colonials' quick end to their season. GW, which was commonly picked in the preseason to reach the NCAA Sweet 16, instead was bounced in the first round of the NIT.

"We had nothing to do," Mescheriakov said. "All the magazines I read said we'd be playing until the end of March. But since we lost so quick, we had to find something to do."

Going to class, the Belorussians said, was not a viable option since they hardly ever understand what the hell their English-speaking professors are saying.

The Belo will be managed by "that Russian-looking guy" who is always hovering around GW's games and practices. The translator/leech will be in charge of hiring and firing new staff members. Word is that the "guy" will outfit his workers in cheesy Colonials' gear like he is always wearing.

Goul, the Colonials' enigmatic center, will be the Assistant Manager. He was a logical choice because he has the most free time. Basketball games don't take up nearly as much time as they do for his teammates since he is always fouling out with plenty of time remaining.

"We are planning on big rushes at the Belo after our games. So I will be in charge of prepping the kitchen for these rushes," Koul said. "We figure I'll usually be free about 20 minutes before the rest of the guys, so I'll be the assistant."

Gennady Translationoff

The Belorussians are the new proprietors of The Belo, featuring all the best food Minsk has to offer. Aluxandra Kool will be in charge, since he has extra time to spare after fouling out of games.

Fascism takes root on Bored of Freaks

McKEENYN O'KELLY
WAITIN' FOR MAY 18

In a long-anticipated action, TGWU Cardinal Steppin' Hole Truckinbutt replaced the Borg of Trustees with a race of super-smart donkeys, known collectively as the staff of GW's erstwhile rant rag, Incontinence Magazine.

After complaints that the members of the Borg of Trustees were out of touch with students' concerns, Truckinbutt said the logical step was to replace them with people who are completely out of touch with everything. He said he could not foresee any more whining from students, since it was a student who proposed the idea in a letter to the Codependence Magazine.

"The old members were just that old," Truckinbutt blithered. "Most of them were people who have spent their whole lives fucking people over in perpetuity to consolidate their Nazi-like stranglehold over whatever industry they have entrenched fat asses in."

"Frankly, I was disappointed with their failure to drive more students back to community colleges or their respective state's Big Ass U.," Truckinbutt said over a heapin' bowl of chittlins at DJ's FastBelch. "If their only problem was that they weren't in touch with students' concerns, then I figured I had to get more incompetent people to do the job."

In an eloquent but badly-written press release about his promotion to one of the most influential positions at the University, Incontinence Magazine editorializer in chief Prickless Pronazio wrote: "Excellent, Smithers, everything is falling into place... My first act as a trustee will be to making Truckinbutt change his name to something we can spell more better, like 'Rand.'"

The press release also outlined some of the other innovative ideas that Pronazio has for GWover. Braveheart will be shown continuously on all closed-circuit televisions and on gigantic screens encircling the Quad. Incontinence Magazine Managing Editor in charge of conflicts of interests Jiff "Gots much" Baxterd will take command of food services because of his complaints of the small portions at J.J. Brade Street.

"Man cannot live on 80,000 calories a day alone," Baxterd blubbered between mouthfuls of buttered lard.

In addition to his plan to change the mascot name of the GWover athletics teams to the "Pinheads," Pronazio said he will use his new powers to make Incontinence Magazine the main publication at GWover. Its motto sill reportedly be "Providing Lunatic Fringe Diatribes to the GWover Community Since Three Mondays Ago, Which is the Last Time We Published."

Pronazio cautioned that in addition to the editorial content of the publication, "space will be given to straight news written in a somewhat impartial way about topics that were already reported in the former newspaper of the Gorge Washington Univeristy, The GW Hotshit."

Truckinbutt, as he repeatedly fooled with his glasses, mustache and schnoz, said the newly assimilated members of the Borg have the experience for the job and the support of "those wretched steaming little pieces of pony loaf known as the student body."

"It is my understanding that their little college conservative group was quite popular, so it just stands to reason that they would be successful in anything they attempt."

Coaches fight; 'show me the sneakers,' they cry

a time a brother got some broad to the Venus Butterfly position," he said, pointing to the numerous sneakers all over the street.

"Yeah," responded women's leader Ivana Killmen. "Right."

"Really, it is," lied Onprobation.

"Uh, huh, and the University didn't intimidate students over that protest before break. Tell us another one, Al Ingle," the women, er, womyn, er, wimbabes chanted.

Meanwhile, some other rag decided to rip on our coverage of this event. The following quote is straight from the horse's ass, er, mouth:

"Our fiends [sic?] in the townhouse [sic] keep absessing [sic] about what these too [sic] groups are fitting [sic] about. Clearly, Precident [sic] Trachenburg [sic] should resolve the issue with objectivist principles. Teachtenberg [sic] is a good man; no marine [sick], but Tracktenberg [sic] knows what he's goind. [sic, what the fuck?]

The entire situation has reportedly depressed GW basketball coach Mick Jahhhvis.

"Why can't I get an endorsement deal from Nike?" Jahhhvis asked. "All we have are these pissy little 'And One' crap shirts and stuff. Like anybody's ever heard of them. This just shows the entire world of college basketball is biased against foreigners."

Reportedly, the entire world rolled their eyes upon hearing that one.

"Why don't you try winning, hot shot?" asked women-wimmin-wombyn's head lunatic Jose Mc-Q-in. Mc-Q-in had recently dyed his hair green and pledged to become the Dennis Rodman of the women's game. "COME TO GAMES" is currently shaved in the back of Jose's head.

"I mean, for all the hype and appearances you make on Full Court Depressed, you're still a mediocre baldy who's biggest accomplishment is not screwing up Patrick Ewing so much that John Thompson could redeem him," Joe said. Honest.

"Well, theah's no reason to get ahh upset abaht it," Jahvis said, suddenly returning to his Boston roots. "Weh' gonna be a Final Fow team next year. Remembah these wohds."

New club formed for hicks and sickos

Miss your momma? Or your sister? A new club is being formed here at GW to help you feel a little less homesick and maybe a little closer to home.

The "Redneck Club," a distant cousin of the new "Country Club," is being formed for the purposes of incest, wife-beating and drinking moonshine, according to the Club's new president, Bubba Imahick.

"Basically, what we do is walk around with our hands down our pants and scratch ourselves and look at our sisters with a little bit of drool," Imahick said.

"Anyone can join, but your neck should be a nice shade of crimson first."

Imahick said the club's first activity will a sleep-over on the H Street Terrace. "Everyone's invited to bring their favorite relative," he said.

"Hey, if you can't keep it in your pants, you might as well keep it in the family, right?" Imahick said. "I mean, hey, put your family to the test. You might just be surprised."

75% of Division I schools say Jarv-ass is their future coach

BY MATT BONER
BITCHING AND MOANING

GW men's basketball head coach Mike Jarv-ass has once again been mentioned for a variety of other coaching and/or entertainment positions. Rutgers, Northwestern, Louisiana State, Tennessee, Harvard, Yale, Gar-Field, Northern Virginia Community College and the Colorado School of Mines have all received permission from GW athletic director/schmooze-meister Crack Dance to talk with Jarv-ass about the coaching vacancies at their schools.

"Honestly, I'm flattered by the attention, but I'd rather stay here and illegally give game tickets to African 'lawyers' who kidnap foreigners at gunpoint and make them come play here," Jarv-ass said.

Other non-college jobs also have been offered to Jarv-ass, including defensive coordinator for the Washington Redskins and third base coach for the Chicago Cubs. Those two teams say they are interested in Jarv-ass because of his uncanny ability to turn really bad teams into really mediocre teams.

"We are looking for a coach who can piss off officials in really big games," Redskins head coach Norv "Spackle" Turner. "Jarv-ass has shown that he can really do in his team's season."

NCAA basketball referees across the country are publicly hoping Jarv-ass will leave so they can go back to doing a half-ass job without anyone else noticing.

"We really hate it when Jarv-ass complains about our calls," referee Old MacDonald said. "But I'll be damned before I let a team made up of pinko Russkies win. I say we bomb Belarus back to the Stone Age!"

The most intriguing position offered to Jarv-ass was director of the Washington Ballet. Officials there say Jarv-ass can really cut a rug and looks pretty damn good in tights.

"I'm so damn pretty," Jarv-ass exclaimed. "They know I got the skills to pay the bills. Show me the god-damn money!"

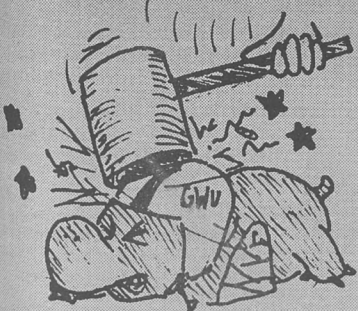

While his men's counterpart Mike Jarv-ass contemplates job offers from around the globe, women's basketball coach Joe McRuined is quite happy with his second job - as a model for the Hair Club for Men.

The Muted Hippo

After this, the Hippo will forever be mute

This week, the bored Hippo takes a look at the college basketball Final Four. He figures that after such an outstanding performance in the fall with the NFL, he should take a crack at a sport where the players are more in tune to the gambling in our society (see Fresno State).

Combined with his muted pal, the Hippo feels confident that you would be stupid not to bet large sums of money just based on the word of a hippo who has never even watched a sporting event in his life.

North Carolina versus Arizona: Are you kidding me? The 'Heels have better guards, better forwards and better centers. Arizona coach Fluke Olson? He couldn't wear Dean Smith's Depends adult diapers!

Arizona guard Mike Babby? The only way he'd make UNC's basketball team is as a walk-on. Understand something - the 'Heels are the best team in college basketball. Ever. Pick: North Carolina 2000, Arizona 4. Minnesota versus Kentucky: There are a couple of compelling reasons to pick Minnesota. For one, the Gophers have perhaps the nation's most determined player in guard Bobby Jackson. For another, they have an excellent coach in Clem Haskins. And most importantly, the Hippo hails from the land of 10,000 lakes, so he has a spot in his heart for the Gophers.

But, remember, this week the Hippo is mixed with the all-powerful muted cheer. So ... Pick: North Carolina wins in a romp!

(Did I mention that North Carolina rules? They are absolutely the best team that has ever stepped on the hardwood. To bet against them is to bet against GODS. Serge Zwicker is the best player in basketball history. I want his love child. Come to me, Serge Protector!)

'Cisco' kid headed for the pros

BY BEN UNOBSERVANT
SPORTS BUTCHER

Proclaiming he's "sick of this weak U.S. shit," GW men's freshman hoop prodigy Frantastico los Veranda is entering the NBA draft.

los Veranda, who hails from one of those fucked up countries by the Arctic, averaged a whopping 1.2 points per game in his first and only season at GW, but said he didn't get the playing time he deserved.

"In my country, I was The Man," los Veranda said, adding that his stats in Holland shouldn't be discounted simply because he played against 6-3 centers named Willem.

"Here in college I can't show my full repertoire, but just wait until I get to the next level."

Despite the fact that los Veranda is joining an already talented draft that includes Tim Duncan, Keith Van Horn and Ron Mercer, he feels he has a shot at being taken with the top pick. "Look at Stinka Dare, if he's a No. 8 pick with his lame skills, then my smooth left-handed shot and wicked rebounding should easily move me into the top three."

los Veranda is also eager for the fast party life of the NBA after nine months of sheer boredom at GW. "In my country, marijuana and prostitution are in, and I think they are in the NBA, too. I heard that GW basketball players had great weed parties - that's one of the reasons I came to GW in the first place - but it's not true. Now, you've just got a bunch of Russians who like their vodka," los Veranda said.

GW head butcher Mike Jackass was angry about los Veranda's announcement. "Here I take a scholarship that some hard-working young American brother could have used and give it to this Dutchman instead. This is the appreciation I get in return? Hrrrrumpppphh!"

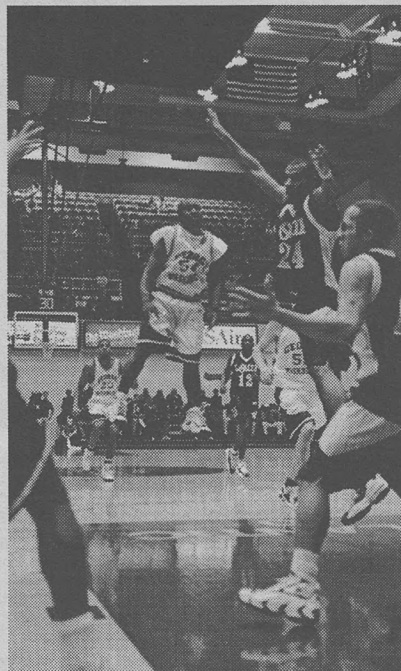

The irony of los Veranda's decision is that on the same day, GW starting center Alexander Notsocool announced that he would be playing at GW for one more year even after graduating in May.

"I'm trying to become the first player ever to get worse all four years I play college basketball," he said. "I don't think I had enough stupid fouls, errant passes and brick free throws this past year. I'd like to foul out every game next season."

'Coach, you never told me that the coffee houses here actually sell coffee! I'm packing' mu houka and hash and pulling a Yinka!!'
